ENVIRONMENTAL HUMAN VALUES COMMITTEE

Objective

Human Values and Professional Ethics Course

This course teaches students how to manage hazards in the pharmaceutical product development process. It covers topics such as:

Chemical hazards, including sources, hazards, and control measures

Management of combustible, toxic and oxygen displacing gases

Hazard and risk management, including self-protective measures, critical training, and ICH guidelines

Environmental risk and market approval for human pharmaceuticals

This technical brief is available from the World Health Organization (WHO).

Pharmacy curriculum

Some pharmacy programs include human values and sustainability in their curriculum. The college also organizes activities to educate students about these issues, such as seminars, guest lectures, and workshops.

Pharmacy students' perceptions on environmental sustainability

A study was conducted to assess the perceptions of pharmacy students enrolled in accredited entry-to-practice pharmacy degree programs in Australia. The study used an online questionnaire developed from two existing instruments.
